

HAPPY NEW YEAR
TO THE BIGGEST APPLE OF ALL.
NEW YORK CITY.

As Rosh Hashanah approaches, the Jewish Board of Family and Children’s Services is grateful to have before us a new beginning—a new chance to serve others, and to serve them better, as we have striven to do every year since our founding. Born more than a century ago in the heart of New York City’s Jewish community, JBFCs has a proud history of showing others “mercy and loving-kindness.” That same spirit compels us today, as we continue to extend a helping hand to those in need of care, support and a new way forward. And though nearly half of the philanthropy we raise supports programs that serve clients who are Jewish, we serve with dedication all of New York City’s diverse communities and distinctive neighborhoods. For all those who serve and, most especially, for all those in need, may the year to come bring renewal and strength, and be good and sweet.
